Press Release

Oct. 11, 2018

Social Investment Partners
Announcing the support of Teachers Initiative that provides “the 21st Century Teachers’ Program” to teachers nationwide.

Social Investment Partners (hereinafter “SIP”; located in Minato-ku, Tokyo, Co-CEOs: Tomoya Shiraishi, Hiroshi Nonomiya) is pleased to announce to grant 30 million yen and provide managerial support for next three years to Teachers Initiative (hereinafter “TI”, located in Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Representative Director: Kanji Miyaji) through “Japan Venture Philanthropy Foundation” (hereinafter “JVPF”), which is co-managed by SIP and The Nippon Foundation (located in Minato-ku, Tokyo, Chairperson: Yohei Sasakawa).

In belief that teachers are keys to create future, TI has been providing teachers in Japan with “the 21st Century Teachers’ Program”, specially designed since 2015. Japanese education is currently at a critical transitional stage, where the education style such as rote-learning and memorization should be shifted to encourage students to think for themselves and to help cultivate their resourcefulness. In the rapidly changing society, students need to be equipped with the ability to find and solve problems proactively and co-actively. In this context, the government also announced the new school curriculum guidelines including “Active Learning (proactive, interactive, and deeper learning)”. Whereas teachers in Japan are known to be incredibly busy, they are now required to have new educational methods and philosophy. TI supports them to be equipped new style of education and aims that students are well educated by those teaches and make good change in Japanese society.

Since 2015, TI has provided teachers who joined voluntarily from all over Japan. In 2018, TI’s program is introduced as training program for teachers in public schools in Sakai City, Osaka, as the first case. TI started to discuss with other regional government and plans to expand it in Japan. TI also aims the social impact to vitalize school educational environment by the teachers who got TI’s program. TI plans to support to establish the alumni network.

Comment from Tomoya Shiraishi, Co-CEO of SIP

TI's program is quite unique in traditional Japanese education system. It is well designed for Japanese teachers to experience dynamic learning environment utilizing leadership training programs and organizational development such as systemic thinking, theory U, facilitation method, etc. in global companies. We look forward to working closely with TI to achieve long-term impact that Japanese teachers will vitalize Japanese education environment, extract potential of students and connecting society and schools as "change makers."
